If an International Payment is not performed by an Intermediary/ Correspondent Bank or the Recipient Bank, for whatever reason, such Intermediary/ Correspondent Bank and/ or the Recipient Bank may deduct its relevant charges (if applicable) from the amount of the Payment being returned to the Bank.

I.6.5.8. For a Collection, the Customer authorizes the Bank to deduct its applicable fees and charges either from the amount of the relevant payment before the same is credited on the Customer's Account, or directly from the Customer's Account.

In order to perform a Payment in a currency other than the one of the Account, a currency conversion shall be involved, such conversion being subject to the variable exchange rates of the Bank, in order to ensure sufficient balance on the Account for deducting the fees and charges related to the Payment Services.

I.6.5.9. In relation to a Payment Order for performing a Payment in another currency than the one of the Account, should there be no agreement between the Bank and the Customer for an exchange rate, the exchange rate to be used shall be the Bank's Reference Exchange Rate valid at the time the Payment Order is processed by the Bank, and not necessarily the Bank's Reference Exchange Rate at the time the Payment Order was received.

I.6.6. Liability and Compensation. Limitation of the Bank's liability

I.6.6.1. Without prejudice to the exclusions in paragraph I.6.6.2. and notwithstanding any other provision of these GENERAL TERMS OF BUSINESS, to the extent permitted by law, the Bank shall not be liable for any loss suffered by the Customer in connection with the Payment Services, except where the loss is directly attributable to the gross negligence or fault of the Bank or its employees in the execution of the transaction.

I.6.6.2. The Customer has acknowledged and agrees that, to the extent permitted by the law or the regulations, the Bank shall not be liable for any loss arising as result of:

- any full or partial failure to meet its duties and obligations due to a natural disaster, fire, action of the government or the state, war, civil disorder, insurrection, embargo, interruption of telecommunication services, failure of any computer system, interruption of electric power supply, labor conflicts (of any nature and regardless whether they involve the employees of the Bank or not) or any other reasons or circumstances (either similar in nature with any of those above, or not) that are beyond the control of the Bank;

- the fact that the Bank does not act in compliance with any Payment Order, if there are not sufficient available funds on the relevant Account in order to process a Payment Order, or should the Payment Order, if processed, result in exceeding any applicable credit limits;
- any action, delay or failure of a third party (including another financial institution) including, without limitation, any refusal of an Intermediary/Correspondent Bank or Beneficiary Bank to execute the Payment, or any action taken by them to block funds corresponding to the Payment, as a result of international sanctions or any other legal, regulatory or other requirements applicable to them; and
- the fact that the Bank does not act or delays in acting on a payment order if, in the Bank's opinion, the payment order, if processed, would result in a breach of any legal, regulatory or other requirements including, without limitation, requirements relating to the prevention of money laundering or the prevention of fraud, or a potential security issue, or a disadvantage, material damage or reputational risk to the Bank.

I.6.6.3. The Bank may take any action it deems appropriate to fulfil any obligations relating to the prevention of fraud, money laundering, the financing of terrorist activities, the violation of embargoes and/or international sanctions or other serious offences, and the provision of financial and other services to any person who may be subject to sanctions or who is known to be involved in money laundering, terrorist financing or tax evasion. Such measures may include, without limitation, investigating and intercepting Payments to and from the Account, and conducting investigations in order to determine whether a person or a related jurisdiction is subject to sanctions. This may result in delaying or declining to perform the Payment or blocking the funds with regards to a Payment Performed or a Collection. The Client acknowledges and agrees that the Bank shall not be liable or responsible for any loss suffered by the Client or any third party arising from the taking of measures imposed by national and/or international legal regulations.

I.6.6.4. Prior to the execution of the payment order, the Bank may contact the Customer to confirm it and will not execute the payment order any such instruction until you get that confirmation. It is the Customer's responsibility to be available for such confirmation. This confirmation procedure may result in a delay or non-execution of the payment order. The Customer acknowledges and agrees that the Bank shall not be liable for any loss suffered by the Customer or any third party in such circumstances if it has complied with the national and/or international legal provisions in force at the time.

I.6.6.5. The Customer hereby agrees that the Bank shall not be liable under any circumstance for any direct and/ or indirect loss, including the one borne by the Customer as result of an action initiated by a third party.

I.6.6.6. The Customer agrees to indemnify the Bank for all losses borne or incurred by the Bank and all claims against the Bank in relation to the Payment Services, provided that the Bank shall not be entitled to rely on such compensation with regards to any loss or claim that may be exclusively attributed to a fraud, deliberate non-fulfillment or negligence of the Bank.

I.6.6.7. Should the Customer/ Holder deny having authorized a payment operation that has been performed, the use of a payment instrument issued by the Bank is not necessarily enough to prove that the payment operation has been authorized by the Customer/ Holder or that the latter acted in a fraudulent manner or did not follow, intentionally or by serious negligence, one or several of the obligations referred to under this document.

I.6.6.8. Liability of the Bank for unauthorised or incorrectly executed payment transactions

I.6.6.8.1. The Bank will correct a payment transaction only if the customer notifies the Bank, without justified delay, but no later than 13 months from the date of the debit, that it has detected an unauthorised or incorrectly or late executed payment transaction.

I.6.6.8.2. In case of an unauthorized payment transaction, the Bank has the following obligations:

- a) to reimburse the Customer the amount of the unauthorised payment transaction in question immediately or at the latest at the end of the next business day after having ascertained or been notified of the transaction, unless it has reasonable grounds to suspect that fraud has been committed and shall communicate these grounds in writing to the relevant national authority;
- b) to restore the debited payment account, where it would have been if the unauthorised payment transaction had not been carried out, if applicable;
- c) to ensure that the date of the currency of the credit to the Customer's payment account is not later than the date on which the amount was debited.

I.6.6.9. The Bank's liability for non-execution or incorrect or late execution of payment operations:

I.6.6.9.1. If the unique identification code provided by the Customer is incorrect, the Bank shall not be liable, in accordance with art. I.6.6.9.2. - I.6.6.9.10. below, for non-execution or defective execution of the payment operation:

I.6.6.9.2 In the case referred to in point I.6.6.9.1, the Payer's Bank shall make all reasonable efforts to recover the funds involved in the payment transaction.

I.6.6.9.3. The payee's payment service provider participates in these efforts, including by communicating to the Bank all information relevant to the proper collection of funds.

I.6.6.9.4. If collection of the funds is not possible, the Bank shall, upon written request, provide the payer with all information in its possession that is relevant to the payer to enable the payer to initiate legal action to recover the funds.

I.6.6.9.5. Where a payment order is initiated directly by the Customer, the Bank shall be liable to the Customer for the correct execution of the payment transaction, unless the Bank can prove to the Customer and, if applicable, to the payee's payment service provider, that the payee's payment service provider has received the amount that is the subject of the payment transaction: in the latter case, the payee's payment service provider shall be liable to the payee for the correct execution of the payment transaction.

I.6.6.9.6. If the Bank is liable for non-execution or incorrect execution of payment transactions, it shall reimburse the Customer, without undue delay, the amount that is the subject of the non-executed or incorrectly executed payment transaction and, if applicable, restore the debited payment account to the state it would have been in had the incorrect payment transaction not taken place. The currency date of the crediting of the payer's payment account cannot be later than the date on which the amount was debited.

I.6.6.9.7. If the payee's payment service provider is liable to the payee for incorrect execution of the payment transaction, it shall immediately make available to the payee the amount of the payment transaction and, if applicable, credit the corresponding amount to the payee's payment account. The currency date of the crediting of the payee's payment account may not be later than the currency date that the amount of the payment transaction would have been if it had been executed correctly.

I.6.6.9.8. If a payment transaction is executed late, the payee's payment service provider shall ensure, at the request of the Bank, acting on behalf of the Customer, that the currency date of the credit to the payee's payment account is at the latest the currency date that the amount that is the subject of the payment transaction would have been if the payment transaction had been executed correctly.

I.6.6.9.9. The Bank shall, upon request, and at no cost to the payer, make immediate efforts to identify and follow up the payment transaction and to notify the payer of the results in the case of a non-executed or incorrectly executed payment transaction where the payment order is initiated by the payer.

I.6.6.9.10. The Bank shall be liable to the users of its payment services for all charges for which it is responsible, including any interest charged to the users of its payment services as a result of non-execution or incorrect execution, including late execution, of the payment transaction.

I.6.7. Consent

I.6.7.1. A payment transaction is considered authorised if the Customer has previously given his consent to the execution of the payment transaction.

- In the case of debit card transactions - by the Client/User signing the document indicated by the Acceptor and/or, where applicable, entering the PIN, 3D Secure password or any personal identification codes (e.g. Client's first name, surname, card number, expiry date, CVC), in the case of transactions where the card is not present;
- In the case of ATM transactions by inserting the card and entering the PIN code.

I.6.7.3. Consent to execute a payment transaction or a series of payment transactions must be given in the form agreed between the Customer and the Bank.

I.6.7.4. Consent to execute a payment transaction may also be given via the payee or the payment initiation service provider.

I.6.7.5. The procedure for expressing consent must be agreed between the Client and the Bank.

I.6.8.6. The consent expressed for executing several payment transactions may also be withdrawn, with any future payment transaction thereafter being considered as unauthorized.

I.6.8.7. The Bank reserves the right to block the payment instrument for objectively justified reasons related to the security of the payment instrument, a suspicion of unauthorised or fraudulent use of the payment instrument or, in the case of a payment instrument with a line of credit, of a significantly increased risk that the Customer will be unable to meet the payment obligation, and in the event of risks related to the existence of international sanctions in force.

I.6.8.7.1. In these cases, the Bank shall inform the Customer by SMS or e-mail regarding the payment instrument being blocked, and the reasons for such action, if possible, before the blockage and, at the latest, immediately after its blockage, except for the case when providing this information prejudices safety reasons justified in an objective manner or is forbidden by other relevant legal provisions.
